FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Edwards would be strongest candidate in Florida, Ohio

John Edwards is the strongest Democratic candidate for President in the key general election battleground states of Florida and Ohio, according to a new survey conducted by Public Policy Polling the evening after the Iowa caucus.

In Ohio Edwards would lead all four major Republican candidates and in Florida he has leads over three out of the four. By comparison, Barack Obama leads only two of the four potential GOP nominees in Ohio and just one in Florida. Hillary Clinton tops two of her possible general election rivals in each of the key states.
"These numbers show that John Edwards remains the surest bet for Democrats to regain the White House," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. "Voters in states key to choosing the Democratic nominee who are concerned about electability should probably be thinking about giving their votes to Edwards."

On the Republican side John McCain was the best candidate, leading two of three Democratic contenders in Ohio and all of them in Florida.
"McCain's status as the strongest possible GOP nominee in these states reflects the national trends over the last few weeks of McCain regaining some of the popularity with likely voters that he had lost over the last few years," said Debnam.

PPP surveyed 946 likely general election voters in Ohio and 543 in Florida on January 4th. The margins of error for the two polls are $+/-3.1 \%$ and $4.2 \%$ respectively. Other factors, such as refusal to be interviewed and weighting, may introduce additional error that is more difficult to quantify.

Complete results are attached and can be found at www.publicpolicypolling.com. These include issue priorities, and crosstabs breaking down the results by gender, race, age and region.

For more discussion of the poll visit the Public Policy Polling blog at http://publicpolicypolling.blogspot.com. If you have questions about this release or would like an interview regarding this release, please contact Dean Debnam at (888) 6216988 or 919-880-4888.
